Rescue Team Reaches Small Boy Trapped In Well; Thought Dead, But Men Worked On

By HENRY PRICE
United Press Staff Correspondent
MANORVILLE, N. Y. — Seven-year-old Benny Hooper was recovering today from the ordeal of entrapment for nearly 24 hours at the bottom of a well. He slept through the night in an oxygen tent in Bay View Hospital where he was taken after his dramatic rescue from shifting sand and the threat of suffocation. When he awakened he told a nurse, "I feel fine." Then he added:
"My body is sore."
Dr. Frank Chabro said Benny's main need is rest. The little boy fell into the newly dug well about 8 p.m. Thursday in the yard of his home here.
"I was running and I hit the dirt," he told his father, Benjamin Hooper Sr.
Kept alive by oxygen, he kept alive in the narrow hole by a tube that fed 20 tanks of oxygen to him while desperate workers dug a parallel rescue shaft. Benny was pulled from the earth at 7:46 p.m. EDT Friday, six minutes after he was reached.
His first words were "Mommy—Daddy."
Today, Benny asked also for his sister, Wendy.
Then he said, "I want to go home."
Hooper said the well had been intended to supply water for his lawn and his children's gardens.

Scouters Visit Reservation

Thirty five Scouters from the Happy Valley District, Boy Scouts of America, toured the Kentucky Lake Scout Reservation last Thursday afternoon. Of special interest to the group was the complete facilities to be offered on the waterfront. The swimming area is now complete with about 75 feet of floating dock. Also completed are the rowboat and canal dock with fourteen small crafts available for use during the summer camp.
The Scouters and their wives enjoyed a famous Kentucky Lake fish dinner, after which John Pasco, District Chairman, announced the consolidation of counties into one district. Appointed to serve on the nominating committee for the new district were: D. L. Divilbiss and David Rose, Murray; Curt Philp and John Lovett, Benton; Cecil Cobb and Tipton Reed, Mayfield, Kentucky.
The committee is to appoint a district chairman, district commissioner, three vice-chairmen and three assistant-commissioners. The new officers will be installed August 15th.

Noel Cole Out On $1,000 Bond Today

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Noel Cole, 37-year-old Murray, Ky., bricklayer who charged he was returned here forcibly this week after "jumping bond," was free under $1,000 bond today.
Joe Williams, 37, and Robert Wadley, 34, professional bondsmen who returned Cole here Tuesday, did not put up his bond this time.
Kentucky officials have forwarded requests for the extradition of Williams and Wadley to Gov. Frank Clement on charges of "imprisoning" and transporting him across state lines against his will.
Cole said Friday that he does not want to prosecute the bondsmen.
Williams said he put up $500 bond for Cole last January when Cole was charged with drunken driving here. Cole did not appear for trial in March and the bond was forfeited.
Earlier this week, Williams and Wadley went to Murray and brought him back, turning him over to the Davidson County sheriff.
Cole was released again under bond Friday pending his trial on the drunken driving charge.
Cole's disappearance from his home touched off a two-state search when relatives told police they believed he had been kidnapped.

Letter To Editor

Mr. James C. Williams, Editor Murray Ledger and Times Murray, Kentucky Dear Mr. Williams:
You probably are already aware that this coming Wednesday we begin a series of meetings in the Madison Square Garden in New York City. This will probably be the largest evangelistic effort in the history of the Christian church. The meetings will last for at least six weeks, though we have an option on the Garden for four months if necessary. Over 1600 churches have united and are participating in this spiritual crusade.
I am sure that you agree with me that America needs a spiritual and moral awakening. Our divorce continues to climb. Crime statistics are alarming. Our mental institutions are jammed. With all our economic prosperity, most Americans feel that there is something yet lacking.
New York is the center of art, entertainment, communication and in many ways sets the stage for the rest of America. The city influences the American people and the American way of life more than any of our great American cities, yet the religious renaissance that has been felt in other parts of the country has left New York virtually untouched. Many of New York's problems are getting out of hand. Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders have spoken out in favor of this coming spiritual crusade. New York's most distinguished civic leaders are working together in an effort to reach the city's millions with a spiritual message. As Mr. Ogden Reed, publisher of the New York Herald Tribune, said to a group recently: "This crusade offers an opportunity for us to break through to the masses of this city."
It is our hope that the spiritual and moral awakening will not be confined to the New York area but will spread throughout the entire nation. This city is a month an awakening began on Fulton Street in New York City. It spread to the entire nation until hundreds of thousands had united with the churches in the space of a few months, and America had one of its greatest religious revivals. It is our prayer that history will repeat itself.
There is one way that you and your newspaper can help. You can carry the news of what is happening to New York to your subscribers. This will be your community talking. Discussion of spiritual things and the need of moral awakening will have a tremendous influence in your own community. This could conceivably set off a chain reaction throughout the nation. Therefore I am asking you to request the wire services to give you constant coverage.
I believe the New York Crusade can become a stage upon which we may see a great religious awakening in this country that could alter the course of our history. I do not think I have ever been so heavily burdened for our country as I am at this time. Its plea of leadership in the world demands that we have the moral and spiritual courage that it will take in the years ahead. A spiritual awakening throughout the nation could make a great contribution.
Most cordially yours, Billy Graham

Uncertain As To What Ship Found

LONDON — The Dutch submarine chaser Utrecht radioed today its echo sounding apparatus had contacted a "submerged object" near a buoy thought to have come from a sunken submarine in the North Sea.
The underwater object was not immediately identified, but was reported indicated the buoy may have come from a sunken submarine. No NATO submarines were reported missing and it was speculated the U-boat might be Russian.
The Utrecht rushed to a spot about 11 1/2 miles northwest of the Dutch island of Texel near the Doggers Bank fishing grounds, after Danish freighter sighted a red, black and white flashing buoy which gave off smoke signals Friday night.
The Danish vessel the Mary North radioed it thought the buoy was an emergency signal from some distressed submarine.
Ships and planes of three NATO nations had converged onto the area in search of the mysterious buoy.
The flashing buoy which gave off white puffs of smoke was spotted first by a British freighter near the Doggers Bank, about halfway between Great Britain and the Northern Dutch Islands. The water there is about 100 feet deep.
The British and Dutch navies sent ships to investigate, and a British and a Swedish freighter circled the area with searchlights blazing through the night in an attempt to solve the mystery. Planes flew over the area.
A spokesman at the Air Ministry in London said a description of the cone-shaped black, red and white buoy tallied with those used by the Royal Air Force to calculate drift and that one might have gone astray. But there was no report of RAF aircraft in the area.

Parking Nuisance Ordinances Passed By Council Last Night

The Murray City Council met last night with Councilman Gaylon Thurman, Jr. and Phillip D. Mitchell the only ones absent. The council passed a resolution approving action of the Murray City School Board to hire Stein Bros. and Boyce as their fiscal agent in the financing of the new school building on South Ninth Street.
The school board proposes to sell $85,000 of revenue bonds to construct a two-story building which will be used by the industrial arts and the music departments of the school. The building will have four classrooms and two large auditoriums, the first floor for industrial arts and the top floor for the band.
The council voted to spend in the neighborhood of $800 to increase the lights at the Little League Park in the city park. A new transformer will be installed and twelve lights added to bring the total to 32 lights.
The field has been insufficiently lighted according to councilman Ben Grogan.
The council contemplated placing no parking signs on South Eighth street from Poplar to Elm streets on the east side. An ordinance will be drawn.
Street lights will be placed on Poplar between Sixth and Seventh streets and on Sycamore between Fifteenth and Sixteenth. A stop sign will also be placed on Olive extended where traffic enters North Sixteenth.
The council voted to send two policemen to the Kentucky Peace Officers Association which will be held in Cumberland Falls for three days. They also voted to send one fireman to the Kentucky Fireman's School in Lexington. The state will pay for the chief and the city will pay expenses for the fireman.
Dennis Taylor was named to be park supervisor this summer at a salary of $200 per month. Taylor won over three other candidates for the position.
Rob Lamb, city patrolman, was given a six-month leave of absence due to illness. Two patrolmen were elected on a permanent basis, Newell Kemp and James Brown. Brown has served as patrolman on a temporary basis for the past several weeks.
First reading was given two ordinances concerning the parking on Olive Boulevard.
The first ordinance prohibits parking next to the island on Olive Boulevard between 13th and 14th on both lanes.
The second ordinance prohibits parking on the north side of the north lane, or next to the curb, between 14th and 15th. An ordinance is already in effect concerning parking on the south side of the south lane between these two streets.
The first reading was also given to another ordinance relating to nuisances; regulating the keeping of animals and wols within the limits of the city of Murray, Kentucky; declaring the same to constitute a nuisance in certain cases; and providing a penalty for the violation thereof.
The full ordinance as passed by the council is printed on the inside pages of today's Ledger and Times.
A resolution was passed unanimously by the council concerning Novel McReynolds.
The resolution is as follows: WHEREAS, the City of Murray has lost a true and faithful servant who gave his life that others might live, and WHEREAS, a family has been deprived of a father and husband who had enjoyed the love and respect of not only his loved ones but all who had known him, and WHEREAS, Novel McReynolds as Chief of Police of our city has exemplified the ideals of the highest order in his acts of sacrifice and heroism, and BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED BY THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY, that such devotion above and beyond the call of duty is an inspiration to be cherished and preserved and it is ordered that a copy of this Resolution be spread upon the records of this city and that a copy be presented to Mrs. Lois D. McReynolds, widow of Novel McReynolds, deceased.
Witness our hands and seals this 17th day of May, 1957.

Rae Foley's new mystery novel
RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 17
TOM JONES, clad only in pajama pants, stood in a halt a step above the motionless body of Olive Riddle.
 "She's dead," he said.
 "She's dead, I think her neck is broken."
 Mr. Potter looked up, nodded.
 "She's dead. I think her neck is broken."
 There was a choked cry and Stuart Young, in pajamas and robe, his hair tousled, hurried down the stairs. "Nora! Nora! Let me past, Jones. Call a doctor! Let me—" His voice broke off.
 "From her room Nora called. 'What is it? What happened?'"
 Frank Deming, in trousers and undershirt, was followed by Garry, wearing a silk dress of a hideous orange; and Finn, apparently clad only in a pair of trousers. And last of all came Deming, in pajamas and robe.
 The first outbreak of excited and horrified questions was followed by silence as they looked down at the crumpled figure.
 Stuart broke it. "Better get her up to her room and call a doctor, Jones, will you lend me a hand?"
 "She's dead," Mr. Potter said. "We can't move her until the police come."
 Garry brushed past the others, who moved aside silently to make room for her. She bent over Olive Riddle. At length she looked at Mr. Potter. "She's dead, all right."
 The lawyer rubbed his hands over his face. "Are you sure, Miss Garrison?"
 "Yes, sir."
 Finn took command. "All right. Get back to Miss Pendleton, will you, and keep her in her room." As Garry went up the stairs, she looked down at the twisted neck, the trailing velvet robe, the high heels. "Well," Finn said with a heavy sigh, "I'll call the police and get it over with."
 Mr. Potter came back from the office. "I've already called them." "But why the police?" Deming protested. "She fell, didn't she? It was an accident."
 "You have to report accidental deaths," Finn said. "Get your clothes on, all of you. And be ready to answer questions." He turned as the outside door opened and the Higgins came in.
 Hazel wore a shabby robe over a silk nightgown, a net over the curlers on her head. Bert, dressed as he had been before dinner, alcoholic fumes made almost a visible aura around him. "Make some coffee, will you?" Finn asked Hazel.

FUGITIVE OUTFOXES POLICE
CHAGFORD, England — William Fowler was still at large from Dartmoor Prison today after a full pack of foxhounds failed to find him. The hounds, led by a horn-blowing hunt master, were called out by police Thursday to assist in the manhunt. After a quick run through the countryside they flushed out a fox.

ABRAHAM AND HIS WORLD

Abraham is one of the colossal characters of history. Other names have come down to us from those days, but his stands out among them as does the moon in a star-filled sky. He made of life an illustrious adventure, and in so doing he was gloriously right in the light of the verdict of the ages. Prior to this lesson God had been dealing with Abraham on a personal basis—what he was to be, to do and to have. But now Abraham came into such intimate and personal friendship and fellowship with God that he was entrusted with knowledge concerning the lives of others. It is one thing to be a servant and to be told what one is to do, but it is another thing to be a child of God and to be informed about matters within the family circle. It is far better to be a child of God and as such, to be taken into the Father's confidence and permitted to share in the knowledge of His purposes and plans concerning those who are not members of His family.

I. Iniquity. Genesis 18:20-22.
The iniquity of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah was at its worst, and something had to be done about it. The terrible sins of the inhabitants of these cities and their forgetfulness of God made it necessary for them to be destroyed.

Because of His implicit confidence in Abraham, who was to be the progenitor of the chosen nation, God told him the burden of His heart and revealed to him His secret purpose of bringing judgment upon these wicked cities. It was due to their sacred friendship and intimate fellowship that God confided in Abraham as to what He intended to do. Abraham understood full well what God meant. It was truly wonderful that Abraham's character and dependability were such that God could trust him as He did.

II. Intercession. Genesis 18:23-33; 19:29
Abraham never questioned that these wicked cities deserved destruction. Had he listened to leaders in Sodom, Abraham doubtless would have heard that it would be very advantageous to any who would settle there. Perhaps some of them would have boasted of their night life. But God spoke about their impending doom. In the light of God's revelation concerning their impending danger on account of their abounding wickedness, Abraham concluded that there was a possibility that some might be preserved from destruction. Knowing something of God's marvelous grace and great patience, he decided to talk with God about the matter, just as one friend speaks to another about anything which is on his heart.

This is the first case of intercession recorded in the Word of God. Abraham stands forth as a great intercessor. He approached God in the right spirit. He had faith to believe that God would be fair and just in his dealing with all concerned, even his own nephew, Lot. Had he not felt that way about God, he would not have been justified in thinking that God would listen to his request. Genuine concern, sincere earnestness, deep humility, holy boldness and great faith characterized Abraham's prayer of intercession. Believing that God, Who was not a respecter of persons, was impartial, he interceded with Him on behalf of others but did not ask for anything outside the limits of perfect righteousness. God heard and answered him by sparing the righteous when He destroyed the cities. That God hears and answers the prayers of His faithful and obedient children is the plain teaching of His Word, as well as the testimony of reliable Christians in the past and the present. Christians should pray for one another and intercede for those who are under condemnation and in grave danger of destruction. Intercessory prayer can be very effective.

Hole in Her Heart

PATRICIA BRUKNIS, 7, plays in Chicago before her May 10 date with destiny—an operation to mend a hole in her heart. During the operation—five or six hours—her heart will be "disconnected" and her lungs "short circuited." Circulation will be hooked up with a heart-lung machine which will take over the job of oxygenating her blood and pumping it through her body. She is the eighth child in two months to undergo this operation at Cook county's Hektoen Institute of Medical Research. (International)
